(In direct communication with the P. and O. Co.'s Steamers to Suez.)

THE AUSTRIAN LLOYD'S MAIL STEAMERS leave Alexandria direct for Trieste weekly, immediately after the arrival of the Bombay and Calcutta Mails and Passengers from Suez. The distance between Alexandria and Trieste is 200 miles shorter than that between Alexandria and Marseilles and is much more agreeable, it being a coasting voyage, with a variety of beautiful scenery from the Island of Candia to the port of Trieste. The passage occupies only 4½ to 5 days and the Company employ on this line their best Steamers, built expressly for this service, and with a view to the accommodation and comfort of Passengers, with an experienced Surgeon on board each vessel. At Trieste the traveller to England has an extensive choice of picturesque and interesting routes, occupying from 3 days 6 hours to 5 days to London at an expense varying from £7 to £13.

The railway between Trieste, Calais and Ostend, is complete throughout.

The Custom-house and Pass-port systems have been considerably modified and need not cause any apprehension of being vexatious or troublesome.

Passengers by the P. and O. Company's Steamers to Suez can have their baggage forwarded by that Company's Steamers to Southampton at a charge of 10s. per ewt., to which the Austrian Lloyd's Agent at Suez will attend.

The undersigned are prepared to grant passage tickets for the Steamers plying between Alexandria and Trieste and for the railway between Suez and Alexandria.

Rates of passage money, including a liberal table and steward's fees between Alexandria and Trieste, first-class £15; second-class £10; children under 10 years at half fare; under 2 years free. Reduced fares for FAMILIES, consisting of no less than three members travelling together: first-class £12 7*s* per head; second-class £8-5 per head. Railway tickets from Suez to Alexandria with all the privileges of Passengers by the P. and O. Co., first-class £7, second-class £3 10*s*.: children over 3 and under 10 years at half fare. NOTICE.—Owing to the extent to which the disgraceful practice has been carried, of palming off inferior, indistinct, and inartistic productions as being original Photographs, HERBERT & Co. inform their correspondents that almost all genuine portraits bear the name of the Photographer or of the Publisher on the back or the front of the picture; where such a guarantee is not to be found, the Portraits, almost without exception, are utterly spurious.

HERBERT & Co. can guarantee that every portrait sold by them is a genuine production, and they solicit an inspection of their unequalled and interesting collection of Original Portraits, both plain and exquisitely colored.

AMONGST numerous other portraits of eminent men and those celebrated for any peculiar gift or accomplishment, HERBERT & Co. here enumerate a few of those that have been just received. To prevent disappointment an early inspection is solicited.

THE

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 29, 1863.

PUBLIC interest is far from being entirely concentrated in the American news brought by the last mail. European politics generally are in a state of disquiet, and the Polish question, the difficulties of which seem to meet with no solution, but on the contrary to grow as might be expected with delay, is in a state of greater perplexity than ever. Earl Russell in his speech to the farmers and country gentlemen of Blair-Gowrie, took a rapid and interesting view of the state of our Foreign relations generally, and said much that had been the subject of comment throughout Europe within a week after it had been delivered.

The language which he used in Parliament some months ago on the Polish question,—the indiscreetness of which was so universally remarked on at the time, and the mischief which it has done in keeping the negotiations of the three powers in their present unsatisfactory condition, it would not be easy to estimate—he still adheres to. "I hold" he says "the opinion still that neither the obligations, the honour, nor the interests of England require that we should go to war for Poland",—this in some senses is true, but in others, it was neither for our interest nor our honour, that we should make a declaration contrary to the dictates of sound policy at the time, and which the speaker, alike from his office, and the circumstance of the time was certainly not entitled to make. This declaration was followed at Blair-Gowrie by another of hardly less importance. He dwelt on the circumstance that to the early partitions of Poland, the powers of Europe became accessories after the fact by the Treaty of Vienna, that Austria and Prussia complied with the conditions of the Treaty, that Russia had not complied with them, and that she had made a serious mistake in not doing so, when she had the acts of spoliation and partition, condoned for by Europe. "What may be the consequences of that act" says Earl Russell "what conduct the different powers of Europe may follow is not a question on which I can properly enter. I merely wished you to remark the fact that these conditions which are contained in the Treaty of Vienna, by which Russia obtained the Kingdom of Poland, have not been complied with; and that without the conditions of the tenure, the title itself can hardly be upheld." Earl Russell called the partition of Poland a scandal to Europe and a reproach to the three powers who were parties to it. No single cause said Sir James Mackintosh "has contributed so much to alienate mankind from ancient institutions, and loosen their respect for established governments. When monarchs show so signal a disregard to immemorial possession and legal rights, it is in vain for them to hope that subjects will not copy the precedent." The precedent indeed, has been copied with a vengeance. As regards the struggle itself it is difficult to know the truth. The Government of Poland is in the hands of the Russians—soldiers and police, but where these are not, there the national Government rules, and is obeyed.

Besides the Polish difficulty, the peace of Europe is on the eve of being rudely interrupted by the attitude of the German Diet to Denmark. By the end of October the term will have expired for Denmark to comply with the demands of the Diet—which she has not the least intention of doing, and it will depend upon Prussia who will be called upon to execute the demands of the German Diet whether there will be war or not. Denmark is making vigorous preparations to resist any attack that may be made upon her—and she stands entirely on the defensive. At the recent opening of the Rigsraad, the common assembly of Denmark and Schleswig, the speech of the King was read by the President of the Council, and on

An article appeared drawing attention to the fact that Mr. Lay of the Customs was bringing discredit upon himself and the service, by dismissing officials in order to create vacancies for proteges of his own. This fact was certified to under the hand of the late Mr. H. Tudor Davies in a testimonial which he had given to a dismissed Tide-Surveyor. It would be well that Mr. Lay caused the Customs Service to be respected, and to stand as high as other Services abroad ; these latter are esteemed on account of the scrupulous care exercised in the dismissal of servants, which never takes place except where misconduct has been proved. It may be that certain classes of people in England entertain erroneous ideas as to the Chinese Customs Service and its English head ; this dismissal of a batch of men recently is a dangerous sign.—Two guns fired from Stone-cutters' Island during the night of the 11th indicated the escape of another convict ; he has not been taken, so far as we can learn.—From Macao, intelligence reached here on the 12th, that the British barque Formosa which had left Macao three weeks previously, bound to Europe with a cargo of cassia was taken by pirates near Ladrone Island. The whole of the crew, sixteen men in all, were killed, and the ship burned. A small portion of the cargo was rescued by some mandarin junks, and brought on to Macao ; some of the pirates have likewise been captured.—The Colonial Government here have just concluded a correspondence with the Chamber of Commerce, on the subject of the Export of Firearms from Hongkong.—The following are the conditions of permit :—

1stly.—A Certificate given by the British Consul to the officer who may be deputed by the Chinese Government for the purchase of Military stores, specifying the kind and quantity required.

2ndly.—An Original Certificate by the Commissioner of Customs, stating the kind and quantity of Military Stores required by the Chinese Government ; the signature of the Commissioner being certified by the British Consul.

A Entymologist writes from Melbourne, desiring to correspond with a man of similar tastes in China, and exchange specimens. His letter, addressed to the Local Government is as follows :—

Haymarket Theatre, Melbourne, Victoria, July 19.

SIR,—Being unknown to any of the residents in your city, I venture to introduce myself to you, in the earnest wish that you may be enabled to further my views.

I am most earnestly devoted to the study of Entymology, and am desirous of entering upon a system of exchange and correspondence with some gentleman in your portion of the globe. I may premise that I have a collection of upwards of 7,000 species of Australian insects, and that I am willing to send the first parcel. In return for my package, I shall be glad to receive as many Lepidoptera as can be spared, and I shall be quite content with them, be they few, or be they many.

If you can, in any way, assist my views, either by making this letter public, or by handing it over to some gentleman who may have kindred tastes with myself, you will render me greatly your debtor.—I am, Sir, your faithful servants.

To the Representative of Her Britannic Majesty, Hongkong.

The usual quiet of Chinese life in Hongkong has been broken during the past few days, by a religious festival on a large scale. Processions paraded the streets carrying, among other things, a tremendous dragon, and affording a vast deal of harmless mirth to the foreign community. An immense matshed was erected near West Point and filled with works of art in the shape of numerous allegorical groups of figures in the most powerful style of dramatic rendering, and all with some moral lesson in their design. "An Englishman" wrote a strong letter on the subject of heathen processions being permitted to move along the streets of a British Colony. Some other letters appeared taking a more tolerant view of the Chinese character, and their religion.—The Hongkong Choral Society's late concert in aid of a City Hall Fund yielded $691 which has been handed over to the Fund's Treasurer.—A notification appeared in the Gazette specifying the proposed stands for public vehicles, and the intended rates of payment. The new vehicle act is meant to come into force next month.—On Wednesday, the 16th intant, the Hongkong Volunteers commenced exercising for the season. A full battery was marched out, and the corps marched out to the Fire Carriage Turning beyond East Point where they encamped for the day. Some excellent shot and shell practice was gone through, refreshments were partaken of, and the corps returned home after a very sucessful march out. The spirit of the volunteers here may therefore be considered unabated.—A curious expose took place at the gaol the other night. The Acting Superintendent had incarcerated a native, of Stanford the notorious confederate of Rustomjee the great opium swindler of last year, and it appears that at a supper given in the gaoler's residence, Stanford sat down as a guest, his wife being also present. The Acting Superintendent was next day arrested, and now awaits his trial for aiding the escape of a convict.—The Criminal Calender of this month is rather larger than usual, and contains some serious cases. The case of Sarsoon v. Barton come on for appeal from the Consular Court at Shanghae ; the Consular decision was affirmed with costs.—The Police reports of the fortnight are not of very great interest ; we hear of no approach having been made towards the capture of the murderer of Lall Khan the Indian policeman.

"AN ENGLISHMAN" stood to his colours in a second letter about suppressing dragon feasts in the public streets. "Consistency" in a very lengthy letter supported the toleration of other religions where injury does not follow the use of such liberty.—The Criminal Sessions have continued since Friday, and will probably end to-day ; the calendar was much larger than usual, and some of the cases were of a serious kind ; we furnished brief reports of the jury's findings and the sentences of the Judge.—"A MISSIONARY" evidently just recovered from a rebuke we administered to somebody about two or three months ago, entered a feeble appearance on the subject of "ancestor worship." He says there is good in it from which the evil requires to be separated. We intend to revert to the topic at an early opportunity.—A full report of the Hongkong Volunteers "march out" on Wednesday the 16th instant appeared along with a return of their practice with shell. The Corps is flourishing, and we hear, likely to receive some increase in numerical strength very soon.—A typhoon at Swatow was reported by the Undine ; considerable loss of life and property had occured. "VICTORIA PEAK" wrote a letter threatening to cease his attendance on the Parade Ground on Band nights unless the Chinese was ordered off ; his communication was inserted as a warning to the authorities.—Attention was called to the approaching annual regatta, with its magnificent list of prizes.—A Shanghae mail arrived on the 21st instant, bringing news that things were at a stand still as regarded the Anglo-Chinese fleet at Japan, and the attitude of Major Gordon.—A report was given of the loss of the British barque Barracouta on the Island of Quelpert south of Corea. A much fuller and more correct account is given in our present issue.—The English mail with dates to August 10th reached this port on the 23rd, before daylight : the local news it contained, were the appointment of a Colonial Surveyor, the expected departure for Hongkong of Sir HERCULES and Lady ROBINSON, and the Secretary of State's instructions to receive Agra Bank notes into the Treasur whenever they could get them,

LOSS OF THE BARK "BARRACOUTA" ON QUELPERT ISLAND.

(North-china Herald, September 5.)

THE British bark "Barracouta" of Liverpool, 381 tons register, commanded by Captain Thos Kemp, with a full compliment of hands and in every way fit for sea, left the port of Hakodadi, Japan, on the 6th of July last with a cargo of Lumber and Seaweed for Messrs. Blain, Tate & Co. of Shanghae. During the voyage down the sea of Japan nothing extraordinary occurred, and she was favoured by light winds and fair weather. The strait of Corea was passed on the 18th July. On Sunday the 19th, she encountered a strong South easterly gale, and at one P.M. on that day, she was sailing under double reefed topsails on S.W. by W. course, shipping much water on account of a heavy cross sea that prevailed. At 5 P.M. the main topmast stay-sail split and went to pieces. At 6·30 P.M. the land of Quelpert Island was seen bearing N. W. by N. 15 to 20 miles distant. By 9·8 P.M. the gale had so much increased with heavy rain, that it was found requisite to take in the foresail ; and half an hour afterwards, while the foretopsail was being atowed, the fore-topmast staysail blew into ribbons. The vessel was then hove-to under close reefed main topsail and main spencer. At midnight the wind was S.S.E., the weather continuing the same, and the vessel shipping a great deal of water.

The decision of the Captain to lay to, had been come to for the ease of the vessel, for, having averaged on S.W. by W. and W.S.W. courses 7¼ knots since noon, when he had been in latiude. 33 17 N. and longitude 127 30 E., moreover having sighted Quelpert at 6.30 P.M. he judged himself well clear of the land, and at the time he hove-to he supposed the ship's position to be latitude 32 49, and longitude 12 07. All this time however the vessel must have been under the influence of a strong current northward and eastward, which alone can account for the unfortunate occurrence recorded in the words of the "log" of the 20th as follows :

"1 A.M., Blowing terrific with heavy rain and cross sea ; and still shipping a deal of water, and pitching and straining much.

"2–30 A.M., Gale taking off with heavy confused sea.

"3–20 A.M., Gale moderating fast. Saw something like land bearing N. E. Called all hands to make sail. Loosed the close reefedfore topsail and inner jib, and was setting the fore topsail, when breakers were seen close on the starboard bow. The ship then struck on a rock just awash. The vessel struck the rock three times very heavily and then was drifted from the rock very fast. Sounded the pumps and found about 6 feet of water. All hands clearing away the boat : turned the boat over on the strong backs ; the sounded pump and found the ship was rapidly filling with water. Launched the boat over the rail and passed into her the masters's wife and children. All hands then jumped into the boat; when moving the boat from the vessel's side found that the carpenter had turned back. Got the boat a little distance from the ship, called out for the carpenter to jump overboard, and we would pick him up ; receiving no answer kept the boat for the land, that is as nigh as the heavy cross sea and wind would blow. Boat shipping a deal of water, some hands baling out the water, others rowing. After rowing about half an hour found that we could make no progress. Kept the boat away before the sea and rounded a bluff head of land. Found a place where there appeared less sea ; two men there jumped overboard and swam on shore to pick a place for the boat to land. On the men landing, pulled the boat to the place pointed out by them. On mustering the crew after landing found the carpenter and Chinaman passenger missing. Part of the crew went toward a village ; the other part and the master's wife and family following a short time after. Found that that the natives would not allow us to enter their village, but marched us back a short distance and then spread some mats for us to sit on, and gave us some mixture of rice and seeds, also some sea weed. After a little time they marched us back to the place where we had landed whereon found that the natives had stolen the boat's rowlocs and a bucket. We all had to sit down surrounded by natives who would not allow us to move from the place pointed out for us to remain.

The greater part of the day (20 July), the party rested in the same position ; surrounded by numbers of natives and without any shelter from the scorching sun. About 3 P.M., a person of distinction arrived, accompanied by a number of followers carrying flags, and with a band of music ; he took possession of a small tent which had been erected. He appeared to be a sort of chief or governor, being dressed in fine white grass-cloth, and wearing a kind of China mandarin's hat. He had not been long at rest before he caused summary punishment to be inflicted on several men, which was carried out by laying them on their stomachs on the ground stripping down their trousers, and bastinodoing their hinder parts with a wooden paddle. Captain Kemp and party subsequently witnessed the same species of punishment on several occasions, for the chief seemed to rule, if not with a rod of iron, with a wooden paddle. In one instance, a man sent with a message did not run fast enough, and being called back, a few strokes of the paddle quickened his pace considerably after a second start. A large proportion of the people Capt. Kemp took to be convicts, as they were very poorly clad,—did not wear grass sandals and China stocking like the others, and were tattooed in a black streak on the inside of the ancle and lower part of the leg. It is presumed therefore that Quelpert is a convict station of the Coreans.

Towards evening the shipwrecked party was taken before the Chief who endeavoured to hold communication with them by written Chinese, characters, but these they could not decipher,. He then caused some rice and water to be served, which the foreigners were obliged to partake of before him, after which they were sent back to sit on the grass, while he and his followers went to look at the boat. The Captain and Mate took this opportunity to ascend a hill to distinguish, if anything could be seen of the vessel, but nothing save the royal-mast heads shewed above water. They discovered however a sort of flag flying on a small island which they at once concluded must be the carpenter and Chinaman. They then went to the boat with the intention of lauching her, but the chief would not allow them, making signs that he would send a boat himself. The carpenter was ultimately brought to them, and it may be imagined they were glad of the meeting. The poor Chinaman however had been drowned. When the ship struck he was asleep, and the carpenter returned to rouse him after the boat and the ship's company left. These two held on to a capsized boat and drifted towards the shore, but the Chinaman's strength failed him before coming to the land, while the carpenter was unable to render him any assistance, having as much as he could do to prevent himself being washed away.

Before night the party was taken to a small but rough tent which had been prepared, where they were served with a mixture of rice and other grains, also boiled pork of which, seemed to be regarded as a great delicacy, and they were left to rest for the night with a watch set over them. Their observations during the day had shewn that the island was highly cultivated, in fact every available foot of ground was appropriated for this purpose, and there appeared no want of food such as it was. Cattle and horses were plentiful, and both appeared good strong animals. The Horse trappings seemed of an inferior description. There was no appearance of wood on that part of Quelpert. They observed Ear Shells (Japanese awabi) of large size, strewn about the beach in immense quantities. Many of the people appeared affected with a kind of leprosy,

As soon as daylight appeared next morning, the 21st, the sailors, made for the boat but were again forced back to the tents. At about 10 A.M. the chief made his appearance preceded by music and flags in the same manner as the day previous and went through another ceremony in administering justice, in the shape of castigation among his subjects ; after which he accompanied the Captain and mate to the high land from which the vessels mast heads could be seen. The chief was at length prevailed on to allow a native boat to take some of the hands off to the wreck. The day was hot and sultry, and it may be imagined that sheltered by but a few grass mats from a scorching sun, instantly surrounded by a gang of inquisitive natives, and open to their scrutiny, it must have been a most trying position for Mrs and Miss Kemp, and the children. More over they were but very slightly clad, having turned out in a great hurry in their night clothes when the vessel struck, and were not able to recover a single thing, the cabin floor being under water when they left the ship which sunk in her 'own ten minutes after she struck. The chief was some protection to the party, for when he was present the people were more orderly than at other times, wher they were troublesome. As a safeguard, Miss Kemp passed off as the wife of the mate ; and although it was imagined that the ultimate design of the chief was to carry off the females, which might account for some of his civility, yet there was no attempt made in the evening. The two natives again returned from the wreck, bringing with them the main royal and its yard also a piece of mast some rope, chain ; and short pieces of uric stays The people seemed to set much value on the wire, for a girl of about 15 years of age who was detected with some in her possession, was laid down upon the grass, close to the tent, stripped and flogged in the manner before mentioned ; the old chief all the while laughing at her cries. From 8 P.M. till midnight, there were continual arrivals of persons in the camp, and music was kept up during the greater part of the night.

On Wednesday the 22nd, a bullock was killed at daylight, the animal being skinned and the four quarters cut off before the entrails were let out. About 7 o'clock the party was visited by the chief and two other persons of distinction. They were younger men and appeared far more intelligent than the old man ; seeming to understand the wants of the white people better, and expressing much sympathy for Mrs. Kemp's youngest child, which was very unwell. A very small fragment of beef was served out cut into little morsels, as a relish for breakfast ; the seaweed given each morning and evening having invariably been retained untouched. Cucumbers appear to be valued highly, as one man dressed a little better than the rest gave three to the Captain, and mentioned to him to put them out of sight. Some tools having been supplied by the chief, the day was employed in preparing for sea the boat in which the crew had come ashore ; and sails were cut up to suit. The natives made an inventory of everything saved from the wreck ; even the clothes and smaller articles about the persons of the Europeans were not forgotten, notes made on each article, probably concerning its use. A print dressing gown worn by Miss Kemp, seemed especially to attract attention, as they did not appear to understand how the pattern could be put on. During the day, with the assistance of the natives, the boat in which the carpenter had drifted ashore was brought to the camp, from the place where it had stranded about two miles distant ; and although much damaged, the carpenter held out hopes of being able to repair her in a few days, and this infused spirits into the party, for it was believed that the chief would be able to supply a compass, and then their intention was to try and reach Nagasaki.

At night a guard of about two hundred armed men was placed around the camp.

Another day passed in such the same manner as the foregoing.

Friday the 24th, the fifth day on the island, hopes of being able to rescue themselves from their uncertain position being high, all hands turned out at break of day, and went to work with a will, some preparing sails for the boats, while other employed themselves splitting up pieces of hencoops and ladders which had washed ashore, to get at the nails for repairing the boats. About 6 A.M. one of the crew caught sight of a vessel in the offing but so far off that it could not be made out of what rig or flag she was. They pointed her out to the native officers, and then, making a rush for the shore one of the boats was launched and the mate and five men pulled off in hert. The excitmen and anxious hope filling every breast of those left on shore may be imagined ; nevertheless they continued at the work of repairing the boat, and some planks having been supplied, they were sawn up by natives was appeared to know something of working wood and iron. About 2 P.M. the boat was seen returning with the vessel running in and approaching the land rapidly the mate soon came ashore with the welcome news that the Captain of the vessel would do all in his power in assisting the shipwrecked party, and in the event of bad weather he would wait three days. On her return, the boat had brought to assist in pulling, three of the crew of the Nelly Merrill—for such was the name of the vessel which providentially had drifted so near Quelpert. The chief caused these three men to be brought before him, and they had to bow to the ground and salaam him ; in fact, every thing was done to keep the natives in good humour, so that they might not put any obstacle in the way of the shipwrecked people getting off the island.

Captain Kemp thus describes the leaving of Quelpert —" After a little time. I told my wife and daughter to rise from the ground and make for the boat, but the old governor made sign for them to stop, and then we all went to the boat together, himself and people following. When we came there, they wished us to take every little piece of rope and chain away with us, but we left them with thankfulness and many good wishes for their kind treatment, and, as soon as we got the boat out of the surf, we gave three hearty cheers and pulled for the vessel which was laying to for us. I could see the natives standing on a hill watching us get on board. We arrived on board with little more than sufficient to cover our nakedness. We were ten days on board, and were treated by Captain Staples, his officers, and crew with the greatest kindness and attention."

It remains only to be said that the American three-masted Schooner Nelly Merrill arrived at Hakodadi with the shipwrecked crew in safety, on the 2nd August ; when every attention was bestowed by the Residents on the unfortunate ladies and children, and a subscription was raised for the help of the distressed crew.

The entire cause of the loss of the Barracouta appears to be the existence of a strong current setting to the North-East at Quelpert island. The escape in the first instance to the shore with the loss of only one life, and afterwaids the uncommon chance of a vessel being drifted so near the island, as to be the means of salvation to Europeans on an unfrequented island, amongst a semi-barbarous people, cannot be ascribed to anything under Providence. Captain Kemp speaks in the highest terms of the behaviour of his crew, who were mostly English.

ASSAULT IN JAPAN.

WE take the following decision in the case of an Armed Japanese against Tatham Davies, and another, from the Japan Herald :—

The Court having considered the evidence of Morotamon and others, tendered on behalf of the Crown, as well as that brought forward for the defence, finds that there is no satisfactory evidence to establish the charge against the Defendants in Law.

Firstly,—The testimony of Morotamon stands alone and unsupported, so far as other oral testimony is concerned. No second witness corroborates his statement : and, but for the magisterial declarations of the Defendants the charge might have fallen through for want of identification.

It appears there were other Japanese present, whose evidence would have been received had they been brought forward.

Secondly.—The fact of Morotomon having drawn his sword before he was fired at, was fully established by his own evidence in Court—although, in the original information, it was stated, that his sword was not drawn until after he was wounded. The Defendants seeing him in pursuit of them with a drawn sword, could hardly suppose that his intentions were limited to a demand for explanations of words used, while the sword was being waved only in self-defence. Japanese laws of honour may require such proceedings on the part of their Military Officers ; but on the other hand, Foreigners cannot be deprived in this country of the right of self-defence.

Looking to the circumstance of their being pursued by a Japanese Officer with a drawn sword, the Defendants, even supposing the opprobious words complained of were spoken, could not infer any other intention in such pursuit, than one of grievous injury to themselves.

While the circumstances of the country generally demonstrate the danger and imprudence of making use of abusive terms towards the native as a practice which no sane or sober-minded man in this country ought to give way to, their employment would hardly avail to counterbalance or invalidate the plea of self-defence, provided the other evidence, oral and circumstantial—proved the existence of actual immediate danger.

Thirdly—With respect to the actual existence of such danger, threatening one or more of the Defendants at the moment, Morotmion was wounded, the Court finds that the shot was fired in the debouchement of a narrow jetty on the main road, that the parties were then about five yards apart, and that horses entangled together on such ground, could not be put to their full speed at once ; it sees reason to doubt, therefore, whether, up to the time at which the shot was fired, the being on horse-back was of much advantage, save to the foremost of the party ; and finds itself led to the conclusion that the danger was then and had not ceased to be of such a character, as to excite those reasonable apprehensions of injury which justify the use of means of self-defence.

In conclusion, the Court finds the defendants "Not Guilty."

ANOTHER REBEL TOWN TAKEN.

THE North-China Herald thus narrates Dr. Macartney's latest success :—

Immediately after the capture of Fungching, as reported in our issue of the 31st ultimo, no time was lost in following up the advantage gained. Parties were sent out in all directions to collect boats, and on the following day (27th ultimo), the Taotai under Doctor Macartney was in possession of a large flotilla. The place to be attacked on this occasion was See-dong, a large unwalled town at the confluence of several rivers, well known to the owners of silk boats as one of the "squeeze" stations, and a great haunt of Europeans attached to the rebel cause.

The defences of the place consisted of three stone-faced citadels, in the interior of one of which a rebel chief named Kuan had taken up his abode. This old fellow was remarkable for opposing views which he continually indulged, and at which any Europeans who happened to be in the place were shown off rather as prisoners than as guests. The garrison of See-dong was well armed, and included about two hundred Cantonese

On the afternoon of the 30th ulto., the Futai's brother and Doctor Macartney, taking the flotilla, proceeded to construct bridges over the different rivers which the troops would have to cross upon their march. At 11 P.M., the main body started from Fung-ching, and next morning (31st) arrived before See-dong, where they encamped. During the day a large reinforcement reached the rebles from Cha-shen-hein, a walled city about six miles off. On the 1st instant, early, a movement was made towards the rear of the enemy's position. Here the entire Rebel force was encountered, and a Sharp fusillade was kept up on both sides for about an hour. The rebels eventually retired into the city closely pursued by the Imperialists. So hot was the pursuit that no opportunity was afforded to the rebels of reforming and charging the attacking party. The North and South sides of the city were meanwhile menaced by Imperialist gun-boats, so that on three sides, North, West and South, retreat was cut off. On the South side a road lead to Ka-shing, on which place the rebels endeavored to retire. They had however to run the gauntlet of several gunboats, heavily armed and provided with shell which made sad havoc in the columns advancing towards Ka-shing.

The success of the Imperialists was most decided. Nothing could exceed the disorder in which the enemy retreated. The loss of the Imperialist side consisted of about thirty, including one European. The Rebel loss must have been very large. Three hundred and fifteen prisoners were taken, including four Europeans. The latter were sent down to Shanghae by Doctor Macartnay.

See-dong was the depot for the arms and provisions used by the Rebels in this district. Its loss will therefore be very severely felt.

The place was given up to loot, the amount of which was estimated by the Chinese at about Two Hundred Thousand Dollars.

I issued my last Opium Report on the 9th instant, exhibiting a better state of the market than advised previously. Since then prices did not very much until the 19th, when, owing to the near approach of time settlements, rates improved, encouraged by the firmness of the principal holders of Bengal Opium.

BENGAL.

THE ready tact and conciliatory spirit displayed by Major Cracroft have succeeded in bringing round the miners of Pind Dadun Khan to a sense of their folly in expecting to intimidate the Government. They have accordingly consented to forget their imaginary grievances, and to be satisfied with the good the gods provide them.—Hurkaru, Oct. 19.

A REFERENCE has lately been made to Government by the Director General of Public Instruction as to whether an Inspector of Schools, when inspecting an educational institution beyond his own Circle, is entitled to travelling allowances. The Government of India has decided that, according to the Rules as the Hon'ble Members of the Council interpret them, an officer is not entitled, under such circumstances, to travelling expenses ; but the question has been referred to the Secretary of State for India.—Id.

THE Madras Government has sanctioned the disbursement of the sum of seven hundred rupees for the erection of a granite tomb at Vellore, with a suitable inscription, to the memory of the men of H. M.'s 69th Regiment who fell in the mutiny of 1806. Colonel Heatly had applied, in the name of the Officers of that Corps, for a grant in aid of the funds they were themselves able to raise for that purpose, and, in reply, the Governor in Council undertook to bear the entire expense of the semi-national memorial.—Id.

THE mutual love and good-will which is supposed to unite all Free Masons in the bond of one common brotherhood do not appear sufficiently strong to insure prompt payment of fees, dues, and subscriptions. The October number of the Indian Freemason's Friend is full of complaints on this head, nor is this the only weakness ascribed to that mysterious fraternity. Cases of general irregularity, and even of insubordination, are reported and reproved by the Provincial Grand Master. But the most interesting and important question treated of in this number refers to the propriety of admitting Hindoos to the rites of initiation. The subject was fully discussed at the Quarterly Communication of the District Grand Lodge of Bengal, when it was agreed, notwithstanding an ingenious and eloquent speech from Brother Piffard that hindoos were not eligible for admission into Masonry, partly on social grounds, but chiefly because there was no means of "obligating" them, as idolaters would of course, be rejected, and those who were not idolators regarded the Bible as nothing better than a good book on morality.

WE hear that the Victor Emmanuel of 956 tons, from Liverpool, consigned to Messrs. Grant Smith, &Co., with a cargo of salt on board, while proceeding up this river in tow of the steamer Frances Gordon, and after both vessels had anchored, for the night, drove on shore off Fisherman's Point. She was hove off by the assistance of the steamer ; but, after having avoided this danger, was found to be in a sinking state from injuries sustained ; so much so that it was thought advisable to run her on shore, where she is at present lying. A steamer, with cargo boats, has been sent to her assistance.—Englishman Oct 17.

MADRAS,

A COLLISION IN THE ROADS.—The Barque Adelaide which was one of the vessels that re-entered the roads on Tuesday evening ran foul of the St. Orwin the same night and carried away her bowsprit. We understand that the latter vessel was carrying no mast head light at the time and hence the collision. It has not yet been ascertained what extent of damage the Adelaide herself has incurred as having parted anchor, she was obliged to put to sea again and has not been visible since.—Daily News, Oct. 22.

ANOTHER WRECK.—We fear we have not yet heard the last of the effects of Mondays gale as we have now to record the loss of another (the third) vessel which has been cast ashore. The British Barque Mencius which left this with other vessels in the roadsted on Monday afternoon was wrecked off Covelong at half past one o'clock on Tuesday morning. She was under weigh when she missed stays and drifted aground The vessel, we believe, was not insured, and the Captain was a part owner. We are glad to be able to say that all hands are safe with no loss of cargo. The Captain and part of the crew came on the next day by canal, and are now in Madras ; the remander of the crew being still at the scene of disaster.—Id.

THE Rev. Dr. Duff, one of India's best and truest friends, arrived at Madras by train from Beypore on Wednesday night. It will be a sad disappointment to many to know that although greatly improved by the change since he left Calcutta, yet the state of his health is such as to prevent him from doing any public work during his short stay in our City.—Times, Oct. 23.

A FRIEND has obligingly communicated to us the following telegram dated 20th, from Cochin :—"Heavy gale of wind. Ship 'Wings of the Wind' on shore—total wreck." The 'Wings of the Wind' was loading a cargo of Cocoanut oil, Coir, &c., for London.

Another telegram of the same date from Cochin states, that the ship 'Fathel Razac' was also totally lost with several lives. The gale was still raging and the ship Indomitable was considered to be in great danger.

This may account for the wind hanging from the southward at Madras for the last day or two. No mention is however made as to the direction of the wind at Cochin, so that it is merely matter of conjecture that we should be so affected.

The Captain of the Mencius reported that he saw a white ship ashore about six miles north of his own disaster, the Lady Valiant was the only white ship, that left our roads but she was in sight last evening and had been since the day before, it may be some other white vessel coming up from Mauritius.

A telegram was received in town yesterday morning from Captain Syme, from Cuddalore, saying that he had been wrecked off that port and wanted the steamer to call for him to take him to Colombo—what vessel he was in he did not say.—Id

AMERICA.

(Globe, October 3.)

DETAILS OF THE GREAT BATTLES BETWEEN GENERALS ROSECRANS AND BRAGG.

By the arrival of the Scotia at Liverpool, we have received New York journals to the 23rd ult. The details of the great battles on the 19th and 20th are very meagre.

NEWSPAPER ACCOUNTS.

THE POSITION.

The following account of the position of the contending armies before the battles, contained in a despatch from Rosecrans's headquarters, ten miles north-east of Lafayette, dated Sept. 16th, has been already published, but for the sake of clearness we repeat it :—

The lines of the opposing armies may now be represented as a crescent, shaped by the Pigeon Mountains, which extend like the arc of a circle around Lafayette, The rebels hold the interior and we the exterior lines. The two forces are within a few miles of each other. but are effectually separated by the range of mountains.

The rebel position can only be approached by the Cuttlers Wing, and Blue Bird Gaps, which are well guarded. This position of the rebels covers excellent lines of retreat on Rome and Calhoun, where they will probably make a new line should they be defeated here.

THE FIRST DAY'S FIGHTING.

The following is the Associated Press despath to the New York papers, giving an account of the first day's fighting. It is dated, "Head quarters, Crawfish Spring Georgia, Saturday, Sept. 19 :—

A desperate engagement commenced this morning at 11 o'clock. The rebels made a heavy attack on the corps of General Thomas, forming the left wing of our army, and at the same time they attacked the right wing, which was commanded by General M Cooks and General Crittenden's troops were thrown into the engagement as convenience offered, the main portion of their forces being on the march at the time. The fight on the left was of a very desperate character. The enemy were repulsed, but on being reinforced fegained their position, from which they were subsequently driven, after a severe engagement of an hour and a half. General Thomas's forces then charged the rebels for nearly a mile and half, punishing them badly.

About two o'clock in the afternon the rebels made a fierce dash on our centre composed of the divisions of Generals Van Cleve and Reynolds. General Van Cleve's forces were struck on the right flank, and being vigorously pushed, fell back, until General Carter's line was broken, and the troops became much scattered. General Thomas on the left, and General Davis on the right, then pushed forward their forces vigorously toward the Gap, and after a hard fight recovered the ground which had been lost on the extreme right.

The fight disclosed the intention of the rebels, which evidently was to get between us and Chattanooga. The general engagement commenced at about eleven A.M., and ended about six p.m. General Palmer, who had gathered together our scattered forces, and General Negley, who had been sent from the right flank to feel the centre, pushed forward and reestablished our line, as it had been before the battle began along the Chickamanga Creek. The country where the battle was fought is level, but thickly overgrown with small timber and brush-wood, and is very unfavourable to the use of artillery, very little of which was used. The casualties in wounded are heavy, but supremely light in killed for so heavy a musketry engagement. The fight on the left was one continuous roll of musketry for an hour or more. No general officers were injured. The battle is is not yet over. It will probably be renewed to-morrow Rebel prisoners represent that the corps of Generalls Hill, Polk, Johnston, and Longstreet were in the engagement. Our men are in the best of spirits and eager to begin anew.

The Commercial, of Cincinnati, of Sept. 21st, publishes another account :—

The battle opened at 11 o'clock, in the vicinity of widow Glens, on the road leading from McLamores Cave to Chattanooga. The fighting soon became general the rebels manœuvring their troops finely. Early in the action the rebels made an impetuous charge on the famous 19th Battery, and captured five out of the six gun belonging to it. Captain Van Pelt, commanding the battery, was taken prisoner. At 2 o'clock the contest was perfetly terrific, the roll of musketry being far more continuous and deafening than at Stone River At 2. 40 p. m. our division centre was pushed, broken, and retreated in disorder. Col. Barnett planted a battery and soon choked the pursuing enemy, who in turn were driven in disprder over the same ground. The division of General Davis was then driven back by the rebels with great loss, and every gun of the 8th Indiana battery was taken, when General Davis rallied his forces and pushed the the enemy back and retook the guns. Reynolds lost heavily, but stubbornly held his position driving the enemy, but never leaving his line. Palmer, who was overwhelmed, failed to get off his whole battery, and two guns were lost. Van Cleve, although fighting gallantly, lost ground, and being overpowered, failed to regain his position Our line was pressed severely, and wavered. The rebels, flushed with their apparent success, made the air resound with cheers. They advanced along the whole line, and when within fire, the musketry rolled from right to left, and till five o'clock the fighting was terrific. General Rosecrans grew anxious ; the wounded came pouring in, and the rebels kept steadily moving up to his head-quarters. No forces were opposed to the rebels, and from this time till dark the battle raged with destructive fury. At dusk, when the firing had almost ceased, the rebels threw forward fresh troops and engaged on right. The action again became general, until long after dank, and raged with the greatest fury. the battle thus far has been a bloody one, and our loss is very heavy. Rebel prisoners say that some of their regiments are almost annihilated. Both armies occupy the same ground as when the action began. We have captured several hundred prisoners, many of whom are from the east. We took ten guns and lost seven.

THE SECOND DAY'S FIGHTING.

The only details of the second day's fighting, other than official, are contained in the following Associated Press despatch :—

Chattanooga, Tuesday, Sept. 22, 1863.

The battle on the 19th resulted well for us, we having held our line as established on the left, and concentrated. our forces during the day ; and on Sunday morning we held a handsome line, with our right on a ridge of hills and our left protected by rude works of logs thrown up during the night. Our left rested on the east side of Rossville. In the fight of the 19th we had lost about 600 killed and 2,000 wounded, and were ahead three pieces of artillery ; and the men were in splendid spirits.

The engagement was resumed at nine o'clock on the morning of the 20th by attempts of the rebels to storm General Thomes's left and front. They were severely repulsed several times with heavy loss to them and very lettle to us. This fight lasted an hour and a half, and was the most terrific of the war, a continuous fire of musketry and artillery being kept up with deadly effect. During this fight our right and centre were not engaged, skirmishers keeping up a halting fire. The enemy finding their assaults vain, manœuvred to the left with the intention of throwing a force on the Rossville road, and attacking Thomas on the left flank. At this juncture, Gen. Thomas ordered Gen. Brannan, who had one brigade in reserve, and two with Reynolds, holding the key to the position which was Thomas's right, to move to the left of the line to protect the flank of Gen. Rosecrans : and at the same time to send Davis and Van Cleve from the right centre, to support Brannan in the effort hold the line to Rossville, and to protect Thomas's left. On seeing the withdrawal of the skirmishers in front of the division which was moving from the right and centre, the enemy made a vigorous attack on that part of the line, piercing the centre, cutting off Davis and Sheridan from the left, and driving the centre into the mountains, both right and left being much scattered without very serious loss in killed or wounded,

The right and centre gone, Thomas's right became exposed to a most terrific flank attack, and Reyolds and Brannon and right of Thomas's line was swung around. His extreme life being as at first, this also fell back a short distance on the Rossville road. Parts of the centre were gather up, and reported to Thomas, who made several stands, but was unable to check the rebel advance, until the arrival of reinforcements. At one o'clock General Granger, with one division of reserves, came up, and was at once thrown into the centre. during the enemy handsomely from his position on a strong ridge, with heavy loss. The fire from one of Granger's batteries mowed them down like grass. This fight lasted about half an hour, with slight loss to us. Captain Russell, General Granger's Adjutant, was killed before he had been ten minutes in the fight. After this bloody repulse the enemy remained quiet until after four o'clock, persisting, however, in manœuvring on both flanks. Their full and correct information regarding this country enabled them to do so with great facility.

Having gotten again on our flank, the enemy made a vigorous attack, and a fight ensued, which has no parallel in the history of this army. Colonel Harker's brigade and General Wood's division distinguished themselves in the fight. General Wood, Colonel Harker, and General Garfield were present, and with the remnant of General Johnson's division held the left and covered themselves with glory. On the right and centre Generals Brannon, Baird, Reynolds, and Palmer, with parts of their divisions, fought most gallantly, while Generals Stedman and Granger held the reserve, and drove the enemy at every point where they went in. At 5 o'clock General Thomas was still triumphant, and on the left held his line of the morning, but with the right of the enemy nearly back to his line, nearly at right angles with that of the morning. Two lines of retreat were open to General Thomas to Chattanooga, one of which he fell back to, to Rossville, during the night.

Our losses have necessarily been heavy, but the list killed will be surprising light, and in the two days' engagement we have not suffered more in men than the enemy. In the charge of General Thomas, on the first day, the enemy lost as many in killed as we did in the whole day. What the losses in prisoners and material are cannot now be reported. Our killed will reach 1,200 ; our wounded will amount to 7,000, most of them light wounds.

We have captured General Adams of Texas, and 1,300 of his men.

OFFICIAL ACCOUNTS.

The following are the official, or semi-official, accounts ;—

Washington, Sept. 22.

According to official despatches received here, dated as late as five o'clock yesterday afternoon, General Rosecrans had information that Longstreet's corps had reinforced Bragg before the battle of Saturday, and it was subsequently staied by deserters from the rebel army that Ewell's corps had also come to his assistance.

A telegram was received here to-day from the officer in command at Chattanooga, which speaks in the most encouraging terms of the general result of the actions on Saturday and Sunday, in which, according to his representations, the Union army secured a substantial success, the enemy losing the most in killed, wounded, &c. The fact that General Rosecrans was not sooner reinforced is certainly not the fault of the government ; but there is no doubt that every effort is now making to increase his strength by reinforcements from more than one direction.

The Star and National Republican, in the late editions this afternoon, have obtained evidently derived from official sources. The longer one, from the Evening Star, is as follows :—
